EXTENWAY: EXTENWAY BEDSIDE TERMINAL TECHNOLOGY USED AT MAJOR CANCER CENTER

Montreal, Quebec, July 27, 2010 – Extenway Solutions inc. (“Extenway”) (TSX Venture Exchange: EY) is pleased to announce that Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center has agreed to purchase Extenway media terminals for their outpatient cancer treatment facility in Brooklyn, New York. This marks Extenway’s first deployment of the media terminal into the U.S. market.

The Extenway system improves the patients’ treatment experience by providing access to entertainment, the Internet and will provide access to MSKCC’s educational content provided to inform patients about their illness and treatment. The adaptation of the terminal to a custom designed chemotherapy chair permits the patient to control their room environment and provides communication and entertainment through a simple touch screen interface. The ability not only to adapt the solution on a software level but to also be physically incorporated into the custom chemotherapy chair demonstrates the flexibility of the Extenway solution.

“Extenway strives to provide the patient with the most positive experience possible as they progress through their treatment. Our ability to adapt to the rapidly changing healthcare landscape allows us to meet customer requests with a high quality, state of the art solution. We expect many in the North American healthcare establishment to follow this implementation with interest. ” said John McAllister, CEO of Extenway.
